

You try to sugar-coat every part of your life. To make the best of bad situations, to make sacrifices, to focus on the little things. It's made you happy, though not always. Of course, nobody's happy all the time. Sometimes, in hindsight, you realise you shouldn't have eaten a whole jar of Nutella as a pick-me-up after that awful day. But you can't help it, it's who you are.

The only sour bite you couldn't swallow was Q, deciding to leave. You wanted to get them to stay, instead of bottling everything up until it gave you heartburn, but it would've been wrong. Now they're back, insisting to bake something for you, right as you try to deal with yet another failure. They're bad with timing. And at taking stuff seriously. You already feel your stomach turn.

Tips

What relationship do you share? Ask Q, to rule one out and pick from the rest.

Family	Romance	Friendship
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▀ Parent and child ▀ Siblings ▀ Grandparent & grandchild 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▀ Partners ▀ Former partners ▀ Future partners 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▀ School friends ▀ Drinking buddies ▀ Travel mates