ALIENATED

You've lost it. Something inside you broke under the weight of time and solitude. You do everything you can to keep it hidden, from yourself and from other people, but you can't do anything about it. Your mind is slipping away, unable to stand such a small horizon, all the iron bars and the grey walls. It wants to break free, at the cost of leaving this idiot body behind.

Is there something inside your cell that only you can see?

Do you live in terror of going back to solitary?

What happy thought do you still cling to?
