

DRUMMER

316 542

GRAND THEFT

You have stolen. There was always something you wanted and couldn't have. And someone else that could. Someone who hadn't done anything to deserve it, or didn't have the imagination to enjoy it. So you took it away. They caught you and you're still sore about it, but they won't find your stash. You just need to hold on, and sooner or later you'll get your hands on it.

What will you do once you get your loot back?

What helps you not think about it every damn second?

Is there someone in here who thinks they're better than you?