ARSON

You have destroyed. You wanted to send a message, because something was seriously wrong and you needed to make it clear in fiery letters. No matter if they take you for a fanatic or an opportunist, at least for once they couldn't just turn away. You may be locked up, but fire has a nasty habit of spreading.

Do you ever think about the victims of your message?

What made you angry about life out there?

What gives you peace about life in here?
